I thought my father was the problem, but I feel it's both my parents. I don't know how I am going to explain this in brief and with enough details, but for the longest time I thought all my self esteem problems, all my trust issues, and my thought of never being good enough, and always wanting to please everyone was because of my father.

Although the results of my own DNA test, which I had taken a year earlier, were odd, they didn't set off alarm bells. I knew my mother's ancestors were British, and my father, a first generation American, was the child of Russian Jews.

A DNA Test Showed My Father Wasn't My Father. Here's Why I ...

"When I was a boy of 14, my father was so ignorant I could hardly stand to have the old man around. But when I got to be 21, I was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years." — Mark Twain

6 years old: My dad is smarter than your dad. 8 years old: My dad doesn't know exactly everything. 10 years old: In the olden days when my dad grew up, things were sure different. 12 years old: Oh, well, naturally Father doesn't know anything about that. He is too old to remember his childhood. 14 years old: Don't pay any attention to my father.

My Dad When I was ...

You know, when I was 18, I thought my father was pretty dumb. After a while, when I got to be 21, I was amazed to find out how much he'd learned in three years. Our final example concerns the issue of Twain's father. As noted above Twain's father died when he was eleven, so the quotation is not consistent with his biography.
